BADGES OF THE G. A. R. REPRODUCED IN PLANTS

Government officials are joining the citizens' committee in endeavoring to make the G. A. R. encampment, to be held here the latter part of September, a great success. Along this line special floral designs have been laid out on the lawns of the Capitol building and other government buildings. These designs include insignia of the G. A. R., the Woman's Relief Corps and allied organizations to be here during the convention.

Under the direction of Elliott Woods, superintendent of the Capitol building, two flower beds have been laid out on the sloping grounds of the west front, designed to add to the attractiveness of the grounds during the encampment.

On the north, or Senate wing, the Grand Army badge, seventy-five feet long and twenty feet wide, has been the subject of the gardeners' work, while on the south end, or the House wing, the badge of the Woman's Relief Corps, of similar dimensions, has been reproduced. It is estimated that about 30,000 plants were required to make these designs.

Plants Used in Design.

The eagle at the top of the G. A. R. badge is coleus, of golden color, while althernanthera, dark red, was used in making the crossed cannon. For the main part of the design, the national colors, the alternating red and white stripes are of irene and centurea, and the blue field is a mass of ageratium. The five-pointed star pendant is outlined with yellow coleus, while the bronze effect of the metal was produced by the use of acalypha, a bronze leaf foliage plant. The other design made was similarly treated with various kinds of plants to bring out the color scheme.

Surrounding the Sherman statue, just south of the Treasury building on Pennsylvania avenue, and accessible to the visitors, four army corps badges have been reproduced with the use of various foliage plants. These designs, about twenty feet in diameter, were laid out under the direction of Charles Henlock, superintendent of gardens, on the north side of the statue is the badge of the 15th Corps, on the west side the badge of the 11th Corps, the badge of the 20th Corps being on the south side, and the 17th Corps being represented on the east side. About 75,000 plants have been used in making these badges.

Supt. George W. Hess of the Botanic Garden has had overhauled and equipped with modern apparatus the magnificent Bartholdi fountain that stands in the center of the garden. This fountain was exhibited at the centennial exposition by the French government, and at the close of the exposition was
